try and others with Spanish leather seats and backs. There is also a complete bedroom set of Circassian walnut on display.

McInerney Shoe Display
One of the prettiest displays made by the shoe dealers of the city is that of the McInerney shoe store. The mauka window, with its mirror background and dome ceiling has been given over entirely to ladies' white footwear, both in high and low shoes.

The shoes are tastefully arranged on brass stands with glass shelves, and the white base board is decorated with autumn leaves and holly. The windows in the center contain a large assortment of shoes for both men and women, while that on the left features the Hanan shoe for men, which are arranged on glass shelves entwined with tinsel and holly.

The Clarion
If you are looking for a Christmas gift for a gentleman, some good suggestions may be gained by glancing over the display in the windows of the Clarion. The window facing on Fort street, with a brown background bordered with white, contains many acceptable gifts in the way of tie sets in the latest colors.

In attractive leather and Christmas boxes. There is also something new in bathrobes as well as novelty jewelry, such as stick pins, and cuff links, either single or in sets. The hotel street windows are dressed in green and white, with green window draperies. Here may be seen a display of silk and novelty shirts, silk pajamas, white serge and linen suits, gloves, ties and other articles of men's apparel.

Regal Shoe Store
The King street display window of the Regal shoe store is prettily decorated in green and red, and an assortment of every conceivable shoe worn by women has been arranged on glass pedestals, while near the back on a series of glass shelves, a number of white and suede shoes have been arranged. Streamers of gold tinsel and holly have been used extensively in carrying out the color scheme. The windows facing on Bethel street, with their mirror backgrounds and glass stands, are given over to the display of Regal shoes for men in both black and tan, and there is also a window of shoes for children.

Sayegusa
This establishment is displaying an entirely new line of Oriental goods this year, and the show windows offer an unusually large field to choose a gift from. They are attractively decorated with Japanese prints and rolls of silk arranged as backgrounds and contain nearly everything to be found in an up-to-date Oriental Bazaar. There is a special display of hand embroidered Japanese kimonos and scarfs, and many unique designs in brass jardiniere, sandalwood fans, ivory fans, jewel cabinets, teakwood and ebony stands, and many other articles which make acceptable Christmas presents are in evidence.

Office Supply Company, Ltd.
Supplies, that's all! And one look at the windows of the Office Supply company will convince one that they keep all accessories in the way of supplies for the modern business office; anything from a pencil to a large desk or filing cabinet. Also all the latest styles in the different makes of typewriters.

"Bailey's"
"Made in Honolulu" is the motto of "Bailey's" and the greater part of their large stock is made in their own factory. A large assortment of iron and brass bedsteads are on display, besides products from the Bailey factory such as kitchen safes, china closets, chairs, mattresses and other furniture.

Lewers & Cooke, Ltd.
The large windows of Lewers & Cooke contain the necessities for the attractive home. One of the largest displays is that of linoleum in many different styles and patterns. Also wall paper and matting.

Crossroads Bookshop, Ltd.
Books, naturally, form the chief displays in the windows of the Crossroads bookshop. The mauka window has been transformed into a bower of white and is filled with books of every description for the kiddies. The other window contains a number of the Crossroads' popular books of fiction arranged in a case near the back of the window. There are also books of poems and fiction, some bound in leather and others plain. The entire window-scheme is very effective.

Palm Cafe.
For interior decorations, the Palm Cafe is perhaps the most attractive business house in the city, and presents a most Christmaslike appearance. The four pillars on the main floor are entwined with strings of malle and run streamers of silver and gold tinsel autumn leaves, while between them sel with Santa Claus masks and various other ornaments. Potted palms and ferns are arranged here and there and on the counters several small decorated Christmas trees add to the scene. The soda fountain is a riot of color with jars of colored liquid and decorations of flowers, leaves and grapes. The Palm has done a rushing business since the opening of the Christmas holidays and all hands have been busy but nevertheless, Manager Junglauss still holds out that the decoration is the thing, and a look at the interior of the cafe will be enough to convince one that he has spared no pains in carrying out this matter.

H. Afong Co.
Many very acceptable Christmas gifts for men are being displayed in the show windows of H. Afong Co., and the spacious windows have been decorated in keeping with the season. One of the principal features in these windows is the lights, which are in the form of various colored fruits, and are strung in and out among the goods which are on display and presenting an attractive sight when they are lighted during the evening. Everything for men in the way of hats, gloves, canes, umbrellas, neckties, etc., is being displayed.

McInerney Clothing Company.
Something new in neckwear is being shown in the windows of the McInerney Clothing Company this year at comparatively low prices. The window have been attractively decorated with men's furnishings and a line of automobile coats, gloves and caps is being featured. The latest thing in Panama hats are in evidence as well as clothes for evening wear.

Bergstrom's.
A variety of musical instruments are on display at Bergstrom's Music House, and new styles in Victrolas and graphophone lately received from the Coast, with many new records, are being shown, together with copies of all the late popular music.
